

Product Design Experience

Biconomy • June 2022 - December 2024 • 2.5 years

→ Designed a game Game mechanics • Playtesting • UX • UI	→ Designed a developer dashboard Developer onboarding • DevX metrics • UX audit
Designed a card game at a company offsite → became internal product → spun off into a startup	Designed + maintained the Paymaster Dashboard
Led game mechanics design, rapid iteration through daily playtests (30), card designs, and transitioned the game from physical to FE-ready in 2 months	# Freeway: Built a fast-track developer onboarding experience, reducing time-to-value by one-third
Designed both the UX and UI for the digital version	# DevX metrics: Proposed and built KPIs for tracking developer experience (UX but for dev); implemented and maintained relevant listeners on frontend
→ Experiments Culture interventions • Cross-team collabs	# UX audit: Applied Jakob Nielsen's heuristics to improve dashboard usability and as a result, remove UX debt
Project 616: Everyone had their own version of Biconomy; I raised the issue and proposed an alignment initiative to fix the fragmented vision	Built and maintained flowcharts, feature maps and did regular competitor analyses to guide product strategy
BIPs: A Notion-based system to turn individual insights into actionable improvements. An internal innovation pipeline for cross-departmental processes	→ Day-to-day product work
Client prototypes: Created mockups showing how Biconomy could improve client products, helping onboard 2 of 5 targeted clients	Collaborated with 8 PMs, 4 FE + 3 BE engineers to design and implement scalable systems, ensuring consistency across products while adapting to individual workflows
Stuff I initiated	Implemented and maintained UI/UX consistency via reusable patterns and scalable component libraries
	Worked closely with Product, Tech, and Marketing teams to align design decisions with business goals
